How did you come about exploring the idea of starting your own business?

I couldn't stand planting myself in front of the computer every day. I enjoy the flexibility and dynamism of running my own business, even though my education had almost nothing to do with this.

What does it take to make it big in today's business landscape?

Having the courage to try new things, because you'll never truly know if your good ideas will work until you test it out. Taking the first few steps, is always the most difficult. You need to be brave. And when you start on something, persevere! Inculcate your values to your employees. Be a leader.

What motivates you?

My family and especially my wife. She works closely with me, managing the office and all administrative and logistic needs so I will never have to worry about these. Aside from that, meeting challenges everyday and continuously learning from them empowers me to keep on going.

What are your top accomplishments?

Setting up this business from scratch and bringing it to where it is today. I'm also eternally grateful for my wonderful and supportive family. I would not be here without them.

CONSTRUCTING FUTURES

Lim Wee Piu – Buildtech Construction Pte Ltd

Mr Lim Wee Piu is an exemplar of the classic entrepreneur – risk-taking, pragmatic and extremely driven. Imbued with his father's enterprising spirit, he started the engineering and construction firm, Buildtech Construction Pte Ltd in 2003, after a working stint at local banking giant DBS and also in his father's construction firm.

A trusted name today among many developers in Singapore, Buildtech Construction deals primarily in large scale commercial structures and buildings, while also servicing a portion of the residential sector. They partner closely with top interior design firms when working on residential projects, helping home-owners to flawlessly adorn the interiors of their semi-detached houses and bungalows.

Interestingly, Mr Lim's marketing efforts have been very minimal as most of their businesses come from referrals. Customers trust Buildtech for their prompt action, excellent after-sales service and consistently timely delivery.

Buildtech has grown from a modest 8-man operation to a strong enterprise with over 100-men today. Taking his company to formidable heights from scratch in an extremely matured industry is definitely no small feat.

"Perseverance takes you to great heights."
